

Miss Ada Semmler A Charming Spring Bride

Before a group of relatives and intimate friends, the marriage of Miss Ada Semmler, youngest daughter of Editor and Mrs. Wm. Semmler, and Mr. Raymond B. Westlund of Geneseo, Ill., and Orland Park, was solemnized in the home of the bride's parents in Mokena, Monday evening April 10 at six o'clock.

The farther corner of the living room was changed into a bower with palms and ferns with a tall white candelabra containing five tall candles on either side.

At the appointed time, while Mrs. Esther Fields Davies of Joliet was playing a group of love songs on the piano, two little eight year old girls, Patsy Mae Oestreich of Joliet and Patsy Ann Westlund, of Geneseo, Ill., under the direction of Mrs. Hugo Neithammer entered the living room from the library door and from there started an aisle by placing four short white pedestals with white satin ribbon attached, leading them to the appointed place.

Misses Lydia Baudry and Adelaide Lauffer, friends of the bride, slowly proceeded thru the aisle and lighted the candles. To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, the groom and his best man, Mr. Stanley Piper of Monee, took their places at the improvised altar, where they were met by the Rev. Dr. R. J. McKelvey, pastor of the Mokena Methodist church.

Miss Adeline Semmler, sister of the bride, wearing a tan gabardine suit, light blue Dutch cap with light blue veil and shoulder corsage of pink rose buds, was maid of honor.

The bride was becomingly attired in a light blue wool suit with white accessories, a small cap of white feathers and a shoulder corsage of orchids. She carried an heirloom which was a beautifully handmade handkerchief, which her cousin Mrs. W. E. Houchin had carried at her wedding and was escorted by her father who gave her in marriage.

Following the single ring ceremony and reception, fruit punch was served in the library with Mrs. Harry Cooper, pouring assisted by four girl scouts the Misses Jean Shevin, Marjorie Marti, Violet Hurley and Jean Rueckert.

As the guests proceeded to the basement the wedding pictures were taken. The basement was nicely decorated with blue and white crepe paper streamers and white wedding bells. The tables were also decorated with tall lighted candles and bowls of yellow jonquils and pussy willows and each guest found their place by unique place cards. A sumptuous wedding dinner was served to the fifty guests by Mrs. Fred Brown caterer, assisted by Mrs. Lillie Cooper, Mrs. Richard Erickson and the above mentioned girls scouts.

At the close of the dinner, the ringing of cow bells, banging of tin cans and firing of an old fashioned shot gun, manned by Chas. Cooper, a large group of friends from Orland announced themselves as charivaring and they were immediately welcomed into the home.

At this time, the four-tiered wedding cake was cut by the bride and groom and served by Mrs. Hugo Neithammer, to the large number of friends and relatives present.

The dining table was covered with a hand made lace table cloth and graced with a tall Easter lily, flanked with four tall lighted candles. The Misses Adelaide Lauffer and Lydia Baudry presided at the tea and coffee urns from the silver serving trays.

Mr. and Mrs. Westlund left that same evening by train for Davenport, Iowa where they are spending a few days, later going to Geneseo, Ill. with the former's family and will arrive home tomorrow.

The groom has joined the staff of the News-Bulletin. The bride is a graduate of Mokena and Joliet Township high schools and is active in Girl Scout activities and is employed as a bookkeeper at the Ill. Agricultural Mutual Life Ins. Co. in Chicago.

Out of town guests were: Rev. and Mrs. McKelvey of Tinley Park, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Ristau and

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Mrs. H. Adelle Cooper of Orland Park, the wedding party approached the altar. The bride, who was escorted by her father, was beautiful in a white satin gown, with a long train and veil. She wore a shoulder corsage of white roses and snap dragons.

The maid of honor, Miss Hazel Uthe, wore an orchid satin and net gown and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white sweet peas. The bride's matron, Mrs. Erna Fietterer, cousin of the bride, wore a pale green satin and net gown and her bouquet was of pink snapdragons.

The groom was attended by Mr. Bryce Williamson of Ashley, Ohio and Mr. Richard Fietterer. They were attired in full dress suits.

Mrs. Geo. Gee Jr. accompanied by Mrs. H. Adelle Cooper sang "I Love You Truly" during the service.

A wedding dinner was served in the dining room of the Methodist church to about 75 friends and relatives. The room was beautifully decorated in green and white crepe paper with rope paper Wisteria flowers, made in two shades. The centerpiece of the table was beautifully arranged with 42 white candles in groups of 7 and bouquets of orchid sweet peas at each end.

Mrs. Earl Reish, Mrs. Thos. Wheeler, Mrs. Walter Yunker and Mrs. Edwin Lucas were in charge of the dinner which was served by the following young ladies: Shirley Braasch, Virginia Gee, Mae Reish and Betty Yunker.

Open house was held in the Goodings Grove hall in the evening when a large number of friends gathered to extend best wishes to the newlyweds.

Not only will this well trained group sing songs with beautiful musical settings but the audience will learn something of the origin of these musical gems. The music "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" for instance, originally was sung by the natives in Rhodesia, Africa, as a death bed song for the native chiefs, later it became the musical setting for a new kind of tragedy in this country.

The songs of deliverance, sorrow songs, songs of hope, and triumph as well as the finest works of the great masters will be included in this program which will be directed by the master conductor, James A. Mundy.

MOKENA BOWLING LEAGUE CLOSES SEASON WITH BANQUET

The second annual sweepstakes and party was held by the Mokena Bowling League last Monday night. The sweepstakes were won by team No. 4 composed of Dick Muehler, E. Cooper, H. Neithammer, H. Spiess and A. Sorenson. Team No. 6 with S. Williams, G. Rinke, F. Rauch and W. Hamilton and John Marti took second place and R. Marschke's team No. 1 with A. Braun, W. Yunker, L. Mueller and L. Warning took third. The best bowling of the year was put on display by Jim Marti when he rolled games of 189, 202 and 244 for a 635 series.

The party was held at Robinson's tavern with Stan Williams taking over as Master of Ceremonies. The party started with several selections played at the piano by Andy Bueschel and singing by the members. A tasty plate luncheon then was served and followed with talks by the captains of each team.

The trophy and prizes were awarded with a bowling pin as the trophy with the 1944 champions, the V-Eighters, lettered on the pin. The pin was awarded to Mr. Barney Hostert of Cooper and Hostert garage, as they sponsored the V-Eighter bowling team.

The other prizes given out were to members that highlighted the season. For instance H. Spiess was given a miniature bowling ball so he can improve on that great backup ball he has rolled all season. Jim Fassett was given a worry bird so that the bird can worry for him when he throws the big bender and wonders where it will head in at.

R. Marschke was given a whistle so that the paperhangers can carry on to the finish next season with their noise making. A pair of dancing shoes were presented to Jim Marti for his ballet dancing on the alley. A sailor boy pin for "Ham" Hamilton as he is subject to call in the Navy. The best prize of the season was a letter written to "Shotzie" Mueller and read to the members by the Master of Ceremonies.

It seems as though "Shotzie" has had an ardent rooter all season rooting and urging him to bowl his best and help boost the great Mokena Oilers team into the championship. But it seems when she held his hand he was all adither and the game went blooey.

The Mokena Oilers and the Paperhangers claim they have the best teams in the league and while they were fighting it out the V-Eighters took the championship away from them. These two rivals are rolling out next Saturday night to see which is the best team. A week from Saturday the All stars play the Champion V-Eighters.

We again wish to thank Mrs. Robinson and her assistants for their efforts in giving us a final luncheon and the decorations on the tables.

Washington, D. C. FARMS FOR VETERANS

After all the talk about helping those who are making the big sacrifice on the war fronts and giving them an opportunity to reestablish themselves when they come home, newly appointed war liquidator Will Clayton is fighting hard against the veterans.

The issue came up when broad-gauged War Food Administrator Marvin Jones backed a proposal to take all the army and navy camps purchased during the war and turn them into farm developments for veterans after the armistice. Both Marvin Jones and Franklin W. Hancock, farm security administrator and former congressman from North Carolina, are urging the idea. They argue that, with military housing already in these areas, they will be ideally suited for getting war-torn veterans back to the land and a normal farm life of benefit both to themselves and the nation.

But Will Clayton, until recently right-hand man to Jesse Jones and the biggest cotton broker in the world, argues that the land should be sold, with the former owners getting first crack at it. While Marvin Jones and Hancock don't oppose the theory of letting former owners buy the land back, they point out that, in actual practice, the former owners will not have the money, so that the land would go to the big land syndicates and insurance companies, thus increasing the concentration of farms into big estates.

SKILLED WORKERS

Inside fact about the hot debate on deferring industrial workers is that the President first signed an order for their nondeferment without even consulting his War Manpower Commissioner Paul McNutt, or his Director of Selective Service General Hershey, or the head of his War Mobilization board, Justice Jimmie Byrnes.

What happened was that the war department sold him on the idea, and he okayed it without consulting McNutt, Byrnes, Hershey or even Donald Nelson, responsible for industrial output. When they heard about it, they rushed to the White House and persuaded the President to reverse his order.

Then ensued a tug-of-war between the army on one side and Donald Nelson, rubber czar Bradley Dewey et al, on the other. From this came the compromise to permit deferment of essential workers over 25, and permit deferment of only 40,000 skilled war workers in the 18 to 26 age bracket.

STORY FROM TARAWA

Latest story from Tarawa is about Lieut. Gen. Howland ("Howling Mad") Smith.

Just before the marines landed, a shell struck a building near the water's edge, and a white cloud arose from the ruins. Actually, it was a cloud of Jap undershirts. When the marines landed, they discovered that the building had been a Jap quartermaster supply depot, and Jap underwear was blown all over the place.

After the bloody taking of the beachhead, many Leathernecks discarded their grimy uniforms and put on clean Jap underwear, as well as sections of Jap uniforms found around the destroyed building.

While this quick-changing was under way, General Howland Smith ordered the American flag raised on a pole nailed to the top of a palm tree.

"Get a bugler out here to blow colors," commanded Smith.

Next moment, he was amazed to behold a young marine bugler standing at attention in the clearing and dressed from head to foot in a Jap uniform. The general emitted a roar that shook the island.

In the confusion that followed, the bugler literally dove into the ranks of his buddies. He emerged in jig-time, reattired in a marine uniform.

That the present system of rotating men in isolated areas, such as Alaska and the Aleutians, be changed from 18 months to one year, provided that transportation facilities are available to bring them back to the United States for a rest.

Magnuson will reiterate the importance of the North Pacific frontier as a "prong" in the war against Japan, will stress the importance of keeping our forces in the Aleutian area fresh and ready for the big move against Tokyo.

SAUL'S EARLY PREACHING

LESSON TEXT: Acts 9:19b-30; 11:25, 26.
GOLDEN TEXT: I am not ashamed of the gospel; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.—Romans 1:16.

"A changed man"—that oft-used expression assumes real meaning as it is applied to one who has experienced the redeeming grace of God in Christ. In a special way this was true of Paul, whose transformed life amazed those who knew him before he had met Christ on the Damascus road.

In our lesson we find him in three different cities, serving his newfound Master and Lord.

I. At Damascus—Confounding the Jews (9:19-25).

"Straightway." What a good word to apply to the servant of the Lord. Paul did not hesitate to declare his faith in Christ, to proclaim that the One who had redeemed him was able also to save others.

It is the normal and proper expression of Christian faith to give testimony to others. That should be true of every believer. With Paul there was the added element of his call to preach, for God had ordained that he should be His chosen vessel for that purpose (Acts 9:15).

One is impressed by the prompt and unquestioning obedience of so many of Christ's followers of whom we read in the New Testament. No doubt that explains their power and wide usefulness. We could learn of them.

Paul's message was Christ. He proved to the Jews that Jesus was the Christ (v. 22), the One of whom their Old Testament Scriptures spoke and for whom they professed to be looking. He declared Him to be the Son of God (v. 20).

They were unwilling to accept the message. They were "amazed" at Paul and "confounded" by the truth he proclaimed, but they rejected both it and him, and he had to escape for his life. But another city must hear his witness, so we find him—

II. At Jerusalem—Disputing With the Grecians (9:26-30).

Knowing his violent persecution of the church, the disciples in Jerusalem were suspicious. Perhaps there was a measure of justification for such an attitude, but one is glad that there was present the generous, open-hearted Barnabas, ready to believe in his new brother in Christ and to sponsor him in the church.

A word of admonition to the church of our day is necessary, regarding the making of a new convert or a stranger at home in the fellowship of the saints. There is no need of putting such a one quickly into office or a place of honor, but let him know that he is accepted and believed in, and thus give him an opportunity to grow.

Paul remained in Jerusalem this time for two weeks (Gal. 1:18), going in and out, that is, in friendly fellowship. That is just what the young Christian needs, and should seek.

He also had something to make right. He had joined the Grecian Jews when they disputed with Stephen (6:9) and stoned him. Paul had agreed with and joined them on that occasion. Now by the miracle of regeneration he is a new creature and is on the exactly opposite side. Now he disputes with the Grecians, declaring that Jesus is the Christ. What a blessed change!

They refused to tolerate that word, and prepared to kill him. But the servant of the Lord was kept by Him, and delivered through the good offices of Christian brethren. How often it is true that the minister must look to the brethren for that kindness which delivers him from distress and danger.

Paul returned for a time to his home city of Tarsus, but when a need of his services arose he was called out, and we find him—

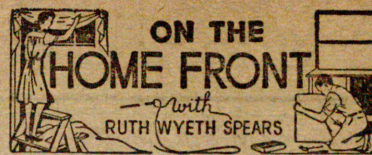

III. At Antioch—Teaching the Christians (11:25, 26).

Persecution spread the believers abroad (Acts 11:19), and like the scattered brands of a beaten fire they carried the flame of Christianity far and wide. Thus the gospel came to Antioch, the third greatest city in the world of that day. A revival broke out, and Barnabas was sent from Jerusalem to be of help.

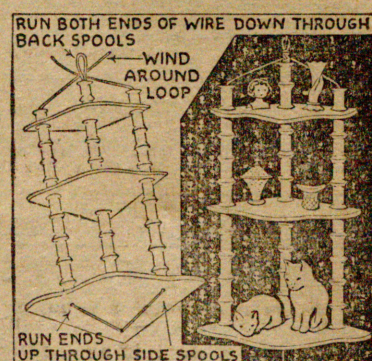

Good and spiritual man that he was (Acts 19:23, 24), Barnabas did nothing to hinder this work of God, but admonished the people to "cleave unto the Lord," that is, to follow Him closely. Would that all spiritual advisers had such a spirit and such sound judgment.

He was also wise in sensing his need of help. So he went after Paul, the very man to teach these young Christians, and to lead them out into a radiant and abundant life for the Lord.

Here it was that the beautiful name of "Christian" was first applied to believers. It is believed to have originally been a term of ridicule, but even then it was a testimony, for it declared that these believers were devoted to Christ and concerned only with pleasing and serving Him.

Just the right size to hold the quaint match holder, the old-fashioned china doll head and other interesting trinkets that you have been treasuring. In Victorian times such shelves were strung together with cord and the spools saved from the voluminous amount of sewing done each season. Today, with spools piling up from Red Cross sewing, we make similar shelves that have all the old charm but are much more rigid and substantial.

The spools and shelves now may be practically welded together with new easy-to-use types of glue. The wire or cord is then run through, as shown here, so that the shelves may be hung in a corner ready to hold articles of considerable weight.

NOTE—Mrs. Spears has designed an actual-size pattern for these three gracefully curved corner shelves which are graduated in size. This pattern also contains complete directions for cutting and joining these shelves as well as a pattern for another larger set of spool shelves. Ask for pattern No. 255 and enclose 15 cents. Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nationwide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Paiche, 500-Pound Edible
Fish, Being Raised in Peru

One of the largest fresh-water fishes in the world, the paiche, or pirarucu, 12 to 15 feet long and weighing up to 500 pounds, is now being raised commercially on a fish farm in Peru.

Dried and prepared in long strips, the flesh from the monster fish was the poor man's "beef" in the Amazon region for years.

Once it was so plentiful that fishermen from one small village could count a two-week catch by the thousand. Unrestricted fishing almost depleted the waters, so Peru has established a hatchery to replenish them.

W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, Flying Fortress pilot, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men are killed fleeing for shelter and Old 99 is demolished before it can get off the ground. Kurtz escapes to Australia, spends Christmas there, and then flies a Fortress to Java. On a mission to Davao in the Philippines their squadron hits a battleship, and sinks two cruisers and a transport. They take off from Malang Field for a target off Borneo, and fly through terrible fog for hours. When they pull out of it they see a frightful black cloud which proves to be smoke from burning Dutch oil fields in Borneo. Dutch had fired their fields.

CHAPTER X

"I finally decide to give it that thousand, and if I get back, let them jerk the wreck and put in a new one. With that extra thousand now, maybe I can get over the target—we're about to begin our bomb runs—and bag a cruiser, which is a good trade for a ruined airplane motor.

"Now we're approaching the exact position of the target, and I begin to realize the predicament I'm in. Because if I lose another motor on the same side, I'll have little chance of getting this plane home.

"All the time Jim's doing his best to stay with me, but I continue to fall back. And just then Harris, my bombardier, peering down through the broken overcast, calls 'Target ahead.' I'm glued to the PDI needle now, but when my bombardier starts to make his run and the bomb-bay doors come open, their extra drag on the air slows me down still more and I fall further behind Jim as I trim the ship both to compensate for those open doors and to keep the wing which carries that limping engine from falling.

"Then over my earphones Jim is calling: 'Bombs away, Frank—I'm turning off the target,' and far ahead I can see the sun glint on his up-cocked wing as he heads for home. But I'm still on the PDI needle, my bombardier has picked up a beautiful target—a gang of transports and a cruiser down through the overcast, the sea is laced with their curving wakes as they try to get away—but he can't seem to hold any one of them in his sights long enough to make a good run.

"Finally Harris, in desperation, pleads over the interphones, 'Frank, I just can't hang onto that cruiser—let's turn east.'

"Can you just hold it, Frank?" pleads Harris over the interphones. 'Just hold it, and we'll hang out one in just a second!'

"And then Jim Connolly, 'For God's sake, drop your bombs and come on, Frank!' I can see Jim in the distance, getting smaller and smaller.

"Harris, the bombardier, peering down from the navigator's compartment, couldn't see anything when his bomb train hit the surface. But the tub gunner, peering straight down from the belly of the ship, swears he saw one of them go smack down for a direct hit on a Jap cruiser.

"With my limping motor, I could sit back and really begin to worry. I tried to level off, but of course I couldn't. I knew we were somewhere over Borneo by now. The altimeter showed we were 24,000 feet high, and in spite of everything I was doing we were dropping 100 feet lower every minute. I thought of landing on the camouflaged field here on Borneo but we might be too low even to bail out if we nosed down through this dense weather and couldn't find the field at once.

"Now dropping 100 feet a minute, if you can keep it from falling no faster than that, at the end of the first hour you'll be down to 12,000; the second hour, 12,000; the third hour, 6,000. So you see how it is. 'If you've got gas enough for four hours you've got barely enough altitude to make it back to Java,' I argued with myself.

"But it was going to be tough on the other boys. We'd been on oxygen for four hours, and ordinarily after a fight in the high air, which is a strain on everyone, the first thing you do is bring her down to 12,000 so everyone can take off his mask and relax. Only I had to hang onto my precious altitude, and it would be another two hours before we had fluttered down to 12,000.

"But it seemed it was the only thing to do, so I told my navigator, Walt Seamon, to set a course for Malang Field. Then it was up to me. I tried every trick in the book and a few I'd heard of to keep that rate of fall from rising, because if it went to 200 or 300 feet a minute only for a few minutes I knew we'd lose the plane. The automatic pilot was out (a little gadget had busted, and of course we had no spare parts), so my co-pilot and I had to do all the flying, worn-out as we were, but at least we didn't have to keep stations on any other plane now, or have the nightmare of maybe crashing into someone else.

"Then suddenly we had a breather, for the clouds vanished behind us and we were floating free out into the abyss of a cloud canyon—the same old one. Peering down, I seemed to see the gray wisps of that canyon's bottom practically trailing on the dull-green jungle-clad mountains far below. I doubt if there was even a thousand feet of ceiling, so we kept on our course. When we finally cleared the weather—we were out over the Java Sea south of Borneo—we were so far out that I realized we'd passed the point of no return. The only way we could go on now was towards Java, which was the nearest land.

"The field at Surabaya was a little closer than Malang, but I was afraid of its short runway, so with what gas and altitude we had left, we decided to try for Malang, but as we approached the mountain pass we could see the weather was settling down tighter and tighter on us, and looking ahead, I got afraid that when we got on up into the pass, the cloud ceiling might push us right down onto the pass floor, and I'd spill all the boys out into a rice paddy in that fog. I could see the crew was anxious, too. I hadn't needed to tell them much of the fix we were in; they hadn't missed a trick.

"So then I took my last decision. Rather than nose on into that pass and use up my last gas trying to see what the weather there was really like (it turned out later it was terrible), I turned and headed back toward Surabaya Field while I still had contact flying, and while I had gas and altitude enough to get in.

(Which means while we could still see the ground.)

"When I finally saw Surabaya Field we had less than 1,000 feet of altitude left and I didn't dare think how little gas. So I didn't try to circle—just dropped my wheels, asked for the wing flaps, and set her down on that short runway, and could be thankful the Japs had left me my hydraulics so that my brakes would stop me on that strip.

I got Col. Eubank on the telephone at Malang. He was most anxious.

"We taxied into our revetment and I got Colonel Eubank on the telephone at Malang. He was most anxious; I was the only one he'd heard from. I could only tell him what I thought were the results of the mission. It turned out later that the other planes had all come down at Kendari and Samarinda.

"He told me to take my crew and stay overnight at the hotel in Surabaya and come back to Malang the next morning. It was the first time we'd seen the big beautiful seaport metropolis of Java except from the air—months since we'd seen any big city. There were stores, and glittering bars, movie houses, and the picturesque natives and the Dutch—a pagoda of the Far East. But we were tired beyond any words I have to tell, from those eleven and a half hours in the air. The longest mission I'd ever flown. The manager of this big hotel wanted to make a big occasion of it. It was the first time they had seen the uniforms of those American aviators who were going to save Java. But after what we'd seen that day down through the mist, I wasn't so sure we would do it. There had to be more of us—and soon. So we told him no, thanks, no party. We all wanted to tumble into bed. We had an early alert scheduled to check the ship for our return to Malang."

"We soon got our first reinforcements," Frank Kurtz continued. "They were Fortresses of the brand-new E model. We'd heard them talked of in the States but I'd never seen one. There were many improvements, but most vital of all were the new tail fins. The old D model which I flew had been almost defenseless there; if a Zero came in directly on your tail, you had to depend on the cross fire put out from the plane flying next you on your wing. If you were alone you were a goner.

"The boys who flew these new E's were old friends of ours, the 7th Bombardment Group—friendly rivals in the Air Corps to our 19th Group. We'd competed with them at maneuvers and in practice bombing at Muroc Lake back home.

"But in January the reinforcements were a little thin trickle of the thousand planes we hoped for. Of course they were then terribly short of seasoned pilots, and often quickly trained kids were flying them, and cracking them up all across Africa and Asia. But it was all they had to send us. Sometimes six would start out from Tampa Field and maybe two would arrive at Malang. During the whole month of January we got only half a dozen."

"We were in the old 7th, which came out to reinforce you," said Master Sergeant Charles T. Reeves, the bombardier. He had been sitting beside the pilot, under the plane's wing.

"So was I," said Master Sergeant Rowland A. Boone, the gunner, who sat next to him.

"On the day of Pearl Harbor, the 7th was sitting on Hamilton Field, California—poised, waiting for one new plane to come off the Boeing assembly line before we took off across the Pacific for Manila. Of course the big news from Hawaii canceled that trip. We'd have to go around the world another way.

"Then they put me to work ferrying E's from the factory to Sacramento," continued the Gunner. "I was picking them right off the assembly line, two or three a day. It would have been wonderful if we could have had that many in Java. But the bottleneck then was pilots—the planes were all stacked up waiting for them, and no matter how fast you build Fortresses, you can't jerk a kid out of a Beechcraft trainer and put him in a Boeing. And by the way, when we got back to the States this summer, the bottleneck was still pilots. They still had several dozen E's stacked up on the factory floor, waiting for men to fly them.

"I'll never forget my first look at the E-model Fortress. She had that big dorsal fin, and she looked a lot bigger—more deadly, too. Because not only were there tail guns, but much better side guns. And a whole stack of power turrets. On the old D model, the angle of fire from the radio guns and the belly guns had been very small, but this was corrected in the E, and the top turret was a honey!

"It doesn't hurt to talk about the D model, because the enemy have captured plenty of them. It's no more secret than the Model T Ford. But in those days the E was a surprise package—like the new F model is now.

"And when something is really new, the combat boys who have to take it up don't want it blabbed around. For instance when we were still out East, a copy of an American magazine arrived which gave a complete diagram of the E. It showed everything—the angle of fire of every gun, even the break in the fire angles for the propellers. There weren't many blind spots on the E where an enemy fighter can sneak in, but this diagram showed every one.

"Our gang talked over that damned picture for days. 'Holy Smokes!' we said, 'why don't they give the Japanese a set of blueprints?' In addition, it showed the exact position of every man on the plane, so the Japs could work in through the blind spots and pick us off.

"It was all stuff we knew the Japanese didn't know, because all the E's we had lost up to then had either dropped in the ocean or burned after beaching. 'My God' the other gunners said. 'They're selling us out back home. They might just as well take the guns off the plane and let the Japs shoot us down!' That picture knocked our morale for days.

"But what the hell! Now the F model is out—nobody knows the exact improvements on that yet, and when the enemy fighters hit the F, they'll find out they've picked up a real hot potato."

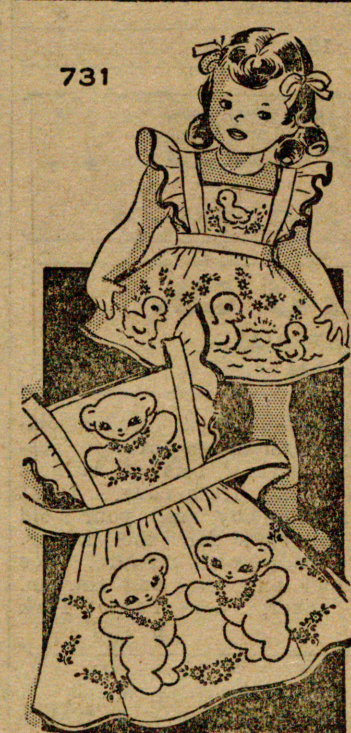

"Let's get back to the trip over," said the Bombardier. "In my plane we left the States December 28. I'd had a blue Christmas—missed dinner because we were out testing guns—but didn't mind much, because we were itching to get over and into it.

"As we were approaching Brazil we ran into a hell of a front, couldn't get over it so our navigator could take sun shots and find out our position, weren't sure where in hell we were. My pilot, Captain Duane Skiles, first went up to 15,000, but there wasn't a break. Then he went back down through it, staying just 100 feet above the Atlantic. We hoped we were headed right for our field at Belem, but we didn't know. Finally I called to him over the interphones and said that in my old geography book, it said you could see the line where the yellow Amazon mixed into the blue Atlantic as far as four hundred miles out to sea—maybe he could pick this up and follow it in.

"Sure enough, we found this line between yellow and blue. But we were farther out to sea than we'd figured. By the time we hit shore, we were pretty low on gas and an hour overdue. It was getting dark, and there are no lights in that jungle—now and then you'd see a glint of a native with a torch down there. We couldn't pick up Belem, and we had just twenty minutes' gas left.

ENDS 5-YEAR SIEGE OF CONSTIPATION!

"Now as Regular as Anyone!"
Says H. C. Durand

Here's a sincere, unsolicited letter every disappointed "doser" will want to read:

"I'm 32 years old, and have been constipated over 5 years, going as much as 5 days without a movement. Pills and laxatives would relieve me only for the day I took them. Next day I'd be as bad as ever. Then I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Am now on my second box, and as regular as anyone could want, thanks to regular use of your wonderful product!"
Mr. H. C. Durand, 221 N. Columbus Ave., Freeport, Long Island, N. Y.

Sounds like "magic," doesn't it? Yet, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN really can, and does, get at a common cause of constipation—lack of certain dietary "cellulose" elements! That's because it is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements—which help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! Doesn't work by "sweeping out"! It is simply a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If your constipation is of this type, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN or several ALL-BRAN muffins daily. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find welcome relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

SERVICEMEN'S NEWS
March 25, 1944

Dear Sirs:

First of all I appreciated the kit you gave me. It sure comes in handy. The Navy is a swell outfit of course not like home, but still OK.

Had plenty of tests already have been appointed M. A. (Master at Arms) in my group. Say hello to all my friends,

Just, Hank Boldt

March 20, 1944

Dear Friends:

How is everybody back home? I received your cigarettes that the club sent me and I want to thank you very much. It is always nice to get something from home like that and makes one feel happy to know that there are friends at home that think and care about us. I know the other boys, God only knows where they all are, appreciate all that your fine organization is doing for them. There is not much news to write about, only that I am well and looking forward to the time when we can all be together again for some of our good times we always had. So will close with regards to all and thank you again.

Sgt. Norman J. Hansen.

Dear Friends:

I haven't received a paper in quite some time but the reason being that I have moved so much lately. I am now overseas and I do hope to receive the paper soon. It is so enjoyable to read news of people you know. Especially when a fellow is so far from all his close friends at home. Say hello to every one and thanks so much for everything.

Dear Folks:

I wish to thank you for the carton of cigarettes. I assure you the gift was appreciated not only by me but by all the officers in my B.O.I.

The fellows raided my quarters.

The good old Tinley Park Times brings welcome news each week. It is a reliable source of news and views of the folks at home and friends in Service.

My new assignment is at a shore base temporarily. I don't know how long it will last but after fourteen months of duty at sea, it is a pleasure to climb into a dry bunk at night without worries of being pitched out.

and I am holding down the "hot corner". We have a league among the various Navy, Army and Coast Guard activities, rivalry is keen, too keen at times.

I am certain the culprits who raided my quarters want to thank you again for your thoughtfulness.

Dear Friends:

Thank you so very much for the carton of smokes. You people certainly have a big job on your hands trying to keep up with that long list of people in service. My congratulations on the swell job that you are doing. What a job that turned out to be since the time that I helped a few times. If I remember right there were about twenty five names then.

I am feeling fine and hope that you folks are all in the best of health. We are all hoping that it won't be too long now, and I will be able to see you. There's no place like Tinley Park. My best wishes and I hope to see you all soon.

Sincerely yours,
Harp Uthe

Brownsville, Tex.—F/O Marquis A. Woods, Tinley Park, was among the recent arrivals at the Air Transport Command Ferrying Division's new Pursuit Transition school at Brownsville Army Air Field. The Ferrying Division, commanded by Brig. Gen. Wm. H. Tunner has the responsibility for the greater part of all training within the Air Transport Command, in addition to ferrying and transport functions.

The pilots, receiving pursuit instructions here, are participating in an unique Ferrying Division procedure which undertakes to make its flying personnel the most versatile in the AAF.

When the student has successfully completed his training at Brownsville, he will be qualified for the important job of ferrying fighter aircraft to all parts of the world where needed.

Prior to joining the Army F/O Woods was a civilian pilot for the Transport Command at Romulus, Mich.

Due to an oversight in listing the names of volunteer workers in the Red Cross War Fund, the names of Mrs. Fred Willman, and Mrs. Bernardini were omitted from the list. These two women had Harlem Ave., Mrs. Boner, the captain of their section.

Because of the great need for Red Cross war funds, we feel, now that our goal has been reached we should not relax our efforts to increase the total. We shall continue to receive contributions until the end of April.

A few of the local organizations have not contributed, perhaps due to their meeting date coming later, and have not been able to present the need to their members. Surely all organizations want to help at this time. There may be some, who at the time the canvass was made, were not able to contribute at all that they would have liked to do and now have a few extra dollars. These may be turned in at the bank. Mr. Keup will receipt them or telephone Mrs. Boner or Mrs. Ebenhaek who will gladly call for the contributions

Land Around Munition Plant Back To Agriculture

A total of 22,681 acres of farm land in Will County has been restored to agricultural pursuits by the Elwood Ordnance plant and the Kankakee Ordnance works.

These acres represent, for the most part, the safety area which was demanded when the plants were established. The trend of the war, the lessening of the threat of enemy invasion, and the developments and progress in the manufacture of munitions were factors in the decision to lease the land for farming purposes, said Lt. William T. Kirby, chief of the land management for the division engineers.

At the Elwood plant 7,039 acres have been leased to farmers. At the Kankakee Ordnance works there are 15,642 acres that will be under cultivation this year. No plans for the sale of acreage at either plant has been made, Lt. Kirby said.

All leasing was done by tracts under the direction of Lt. Kirby; H.
A. Mecklenburg, local representative of the division engineers on farm leasing, and Paul C. Williams, in charge of leasing of agricultural lands.

Sealed bids were taken on the original leases of the tracts, which average about 168 acres at the Kankakee Ordnance works and 153 acres at the Elwood Ordnance plant.
No buildings were included in the land leases. On tracts that have buildings, the structures were leased separately.

The majority of the tenants are Will County farmers, are American citizens, and have been investigated thoroughly before being given permits to farm the land, Lt. Kirby said.
Tenants are advised that the land may be taken over at any time in the event it should be needed for war purposes. Leases at the Elwood plant ban such crops as corn, sorghum, and hemp inside the fence.
At the Kankakee plant the tall crops must be at least 1,300 feet from the fence.

Sr., have returned to their home in Towerhill, Illinois after having spent the winter here with their son Joe Ingraham, Jr., and family.

Mrs. A. W. Walsh and Mrs. Leonard Anderson and children spent Sunday in Lockport with Mrs. Emma Weber.

The New Lenox Garden club met Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Dean Bright. The assisting hostess was Mrs. R. Leslie Brownlee. Mrs. Earl Rush of Joliet gave a very interesting talk on "Victory Garden". She talked of gardens, as composed of the sense of sight, smell, and taste, shadow, and memories. With good examples she illustrated them. Her experiences at gardening in Oklahoma were very interesting. She gave helpful information on the time of planting, control of garden pests, and the most successful varieties of seeds for the average gardener to grow, and answered several questions asked by the club members. The club made 700 bandages during month of March, and they voted to continue meeting Tuesdays during April to roll bandages for the Red Cross. In recognition of her fine work as past president, Mrs. Lee Frey was presented with a lovely gift. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Bright and Mrs. Brownlee.

Mrs. E. G. Greeman spent Easter in Chicago with her sons, Paul and Clarence and their families.

OPA Announces Results of Survey

A letter directed to the consumers in this area has been received from the price panel of War Price and Rationing Board of Joliet in regard to the results of the recent price compliance survey. It reads as follows: "We thought consumers in your area might be interested in knowing the results of the survey conducted March 13 to 18. In all 299 stores were visited by members of our staff and 31 price panel assistants. The purpose of this survey was two-fold. To see if merchants were charging the correct prices and displaying grades and ceiling price lists properly, and to assist the merchants on price regulation problems. Contrary to the belief of some people, we were not 'snooping'. We want to work with the merchant and consumer to prevent inflation.

"Of the 299 stores visited only 121 were 'perfect'. Actually there were very few large violations. The greatest number of price violations were on meat with 38 violations of overcharges on round steak, 20 violations on chuck roast, 4 on dressed chickens, 7 on center cut pork chops and only 1 on butter. On grocery items the greatest number of violations were on coffee with 17, followed by 9 on blue label Karo syrup. The greatest number of violations were that ceiling prices were not posted properly. There were 160 stores that had failed to mark prices on some grocery items. There were 236 that failed to show price tags on all meat cuts and 78 did not show graded tags on beef cuts. Sixty-eight merchants failed to have their soap price posters displayed and 49 did not show what O. P. A. group they were in. Of these stores, 243 in group 1, 46 in 2, 3 in group 3, and 7 in group 4.

"These violations were pointed out to merchants and many have undoubtedly corrected them. Perhaps most of them were unintentional but they must be corrected before they go too far. All of these stores showing violations will again be visited in early April.

"Official price lists may be had at the Joliet office and should be kept handy for reference before shopping. News Letters to consumers will be mailed weekly by request at the office or by calling Joliet 4240.

VFW Plans To Raise Funds

Anticipating the ultimate return of nearly 10 million persons in uniform to civilian life, and the problem of helping thousands of disabled veterans to readjust themselves to new occupations, plans for a long range post-war veterans welfare program were recently approved by the national council of administration of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. To make certain that this nationwide rehabilitation program will be established on a permanent basis, the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. will announce plans in early 1944 for a campaign to collect a fund of $1,500,000.

"Individual members of the organization, as well as all patriotic citizens, will be invited to contribute to this fund," according to advance information received here by Commander Glenn Peterson of Post No. 725. "With a goal of $1,500,000, the sum of 1 million dollars will be earmarked for direct aid to disabled and needy veterans and their dependents. The balance will be used to expand and maintain the facilities of the V. F. W. National Home, Eaton Rapids, Michigan, established in 1925 as a home for widows and orphans of veterans. It is expected that the present conflict will leave in its wake thousands of broken families and children minus at least one parent."

In the tentative plans to raise the proposed fund, every local unit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States will be requested to participate. Each chapter will be assigned a definite quota which is to be subscribed with funds obtained either as donations or raised through enterprises conducted under the sponsorship of the V. F. W. or other patriotic groups.

The need for this rehabilitation fund was recognized by the delegates of the 1943 national convention held in New York City late in October. In a resolution adopted at this meeting, the national council of administration was directed to formulate plans for the fund raising campaign which will be formally launched early in 1944.

Electoral College Should Be Abolished

This year being one of political campaigns for national, state and county offices, the voters are beginning to wonder if our outmoded and bewildered method of nominating and electing a president of the United States had better be discarded and the voters given an opportunity of nominating and electing a candidate same as they do for state offices.

The National conventions are not expressing the will of the electorate. We have seen the farce delegates have made of conventions. In many instances they were pledged by their people back home to support their choice of a candidate but when they reached the convention these delegates have voted for a dark horse and it has been charged many were paid for their votes. This monkey business is not the will of the people.

Next the electoral college should be abolished. No matter how many votes a candidate receives in the general election, if he does not have the needed electoral college votes he is not elected. This is not expressive of the will of the people.

At the last national election Wilkie received millions of votes, yet did not carry the electoral college votes.

This matter is something for our politicians to think about.

TAKE CARE OF YOUR ELECTRIC APPLIANCES—THEY'RE SCARCE IN WARTIME

Here are 9 ways to make your vacuum cleaner last longer and clean better

Empty bag every time you vacuum. Occasionally, turn bag inside out and brush it. Never wash bag.

Lubricate cleaner according to manufacturer's instructions. If instructions are lost, consult dealer.

Remove hairs and threads from brush. Have worn brushes replaced or repaired. Worn brushes do not pick up all the dirt.

Adjust nozzle and brush. Brush usually belongs about 1/8" below nozzle. Improper adjustment may break belt. Belts are getting scarce.

Vacuum rugs often, so that embedded dirt and grit does not hurt the rug or dim its color.

Do not run cleaner over metal objects, such as pins. They may damage fan.

Do not repair cleaner yourself. See dealer if it does not operate satisfactorily when you have followed these instructions.

Disconnect cleaner immediately if motor fails to start, and have dealer examine . . . or you may damage motor.

Keep cord away from radiators. Do not twist, kink or knot. Tape worn places. Grasp plug to pull cord from outlet. Coil it neatly on brackets of cleaner when not in use.

Radio Invasion Weapon

MOBILE RADIO STATION LINKS LAND, SEA AND AIR INVADERS

The terrific power of American invasion forces is made possible by combining aerial, naval, and ground forces into a single assault. A radio weapon used for this purpose in the African, Sicilian, and Italian invasion is the Hallcrafters mobile radio station, which is landed on the invasion coast and used for 3-way communication between ground forces on the beach, attack bombers in the air, and battle ships at sea. The station, which is capable of traveling at high speed, consists of an American truck carrying a powerful short wave transmitter and twin receivers. This is coupled to a gasoline driven motor generator which supplies power for the high output station.

The Hallcrafters mobile radio station, known to Signal Corps fighters as the SCR-299, is capable of receiving and transmitting battle orders over hundreds of miles. The telephone shown on the left can be operated at a distance of one mile from the station itself. A complete duplicate of the transmitter and receiver is carried in the form of spare parts in the cabinet bench on which the operator sits. Signal Corps Photos

by Ada Lambrecht

The following letter was received by the Victory club from Cpl. Lloyd Lühring somewhere in New Guinea:

"Received your Christmas gift on March 19th. The 19th also was the date on which I sailed from the good old United States two years ago.

The buddies in my company, sure thought it was a very nice present, at least I can't lose it while taking a shower. (The club sent soap on a cord.)

The seasons here are reversed, spring comes in September, October and November, summer in December, January and February, winter June, July and August. It seldom freezes here, only in the mountains. The temperature changes only about ten degrees the year round. On Christmas day it was over a hundred and ten in the shade and there wasn't a cloud in the sky. As for me, give me the seasons we have at home. We can't even have a snowball fight here. Snow is one thing I haven't seen since 1941.

There sure are plenty of coconut trees here. Also banana trees which grow wild. It is rather hard to get the coconuts down as the trees are from 50 to 60 feet tall. I (not being a native, sometimes I wonder) cannot climb the trees. The natives are very friendly, that is the only way we can get some coconuts to eat. The way they go up a tree is something to see. It costs a little money for that. If it isn't money they want, its cigarettes they ask for. But after all its worth what they ask for just to see them climb the tree.

You don't know how much your gift meant to me. How I felt to —Galley 3 know that even though there are ten thousand miles between us, you thought of me. It gives us something more to fight for knowing that clubs all over the United States are working hard to give us what we need. So to the members of the Victory club, you sure deserve all the credit which is due you. It is hard to put it in words.

We have three shows a week here and it is getting time to go. I am also enclosing one of our own newspapers. I am in the best of health. Thanks very much for the gift. My buddies too wish you the best of luck."

Sheldon Whitcomb of Marion, Ind. was the guest of honor at a farewell dinner served at the Baumann home Wednesday evening. Guests were his wife and daughter, Shelby Jeanne; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Whitcomb of Matteson, and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Lambrecht, and son, Mr. Whitcomb reported at Ft. Sheridan Thursday.

Mrs. Frank Heisner is a surgical patient at Silver Cross hospital. Gilbert Knater, State Police Sergeant underwent an appendectomy Wednesday morning in Silver Cross hospital.

Charlene Folkers returned Friday from Michael Reese hospital Chicago where she was a patient for a few days.

Mrs. R. Malek visited her daughter Mrs. Gilbert, of Champaign early last week.

Mrs. J. Brauer and Mrs. Harry Koerner of Joliet visited at the Baumann home Friday evening.

Albert Krusemark Sr. who has been ill is sufficiently improved to resume his practice in his Joliet law office.

John Henry Weitendorf, patient at the Will County Sanatorium spent Easter Sunday at home with his parents.

Mrs. Alvina Cheney is recovering from a throat infection.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heisner spent a few days in Michigan visiting their daughter Mrs. Burton Breidert.

Make Over 5300 Work Saving Devices Available

Some 150 electrical appliance dealers in approximately 60 northern Illinois towns outside Chicago have made over 5300 work saving electrical devices available to war-busy families through the appliance swap campaign launched several months ago, it was announced today. This campaign was one result of a nationwide appeal by the War Production Board that homes be searched for idle electrical appliances for use of war workers and others unable to purchase them due to wartime manufacturing restrictions. The dealers purchased these appliances with War Stamps, reconditioned them and offered them for resale.

Although dealers have reported receipt of almost every conceivable type of appliance from electric razors to deep fat fryers, the much needed electric iron heads the list of devices turned in with a total of 1840. Toasters, radios, waffle irons, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, lamps, hotplates, heaters and coffee makers are well up on the list of appliances swapped or War Stamps. There have also been 65 refrigerators turned in as well as many motors, ans, ironers, mixers and roasters.

Dealers report an almost immediate turnover on all items due to the wartime shortage and many of them have waiting lists for some of the more popular items.

Judging from comments made in participating stores, "The 'Swap' campaign has done and is doing a big war job in northern Illinois."

Hot Suds, Clean Towels, Banish Dishwater Bacteria

The easy way with dishes is the systematic way. Scrape, rinse and stack dishes in an orderly arrangement. Use 2 dishpans or 1 dishpan and drain basket unless you have a divided sink with stoppers. In one pan have hot, sudsy water. Keep boiling water at hand for rinsing.

Wash glasses first; a dish mop is handy for cleansing inside them.

Silver should be thoroughly washed, rinsed and placed on a folded towel, or pad to avoid scratching. Kitchen silver may be placed in the drain basket or rinse pan.

"YOU can't do business with dishwater bacteria. They don't understand polite hints. Banish them!" That's the advice to housewives given by Marjorie Griffin, Home Editor of Capper's Farmer, a publication of national circulation.

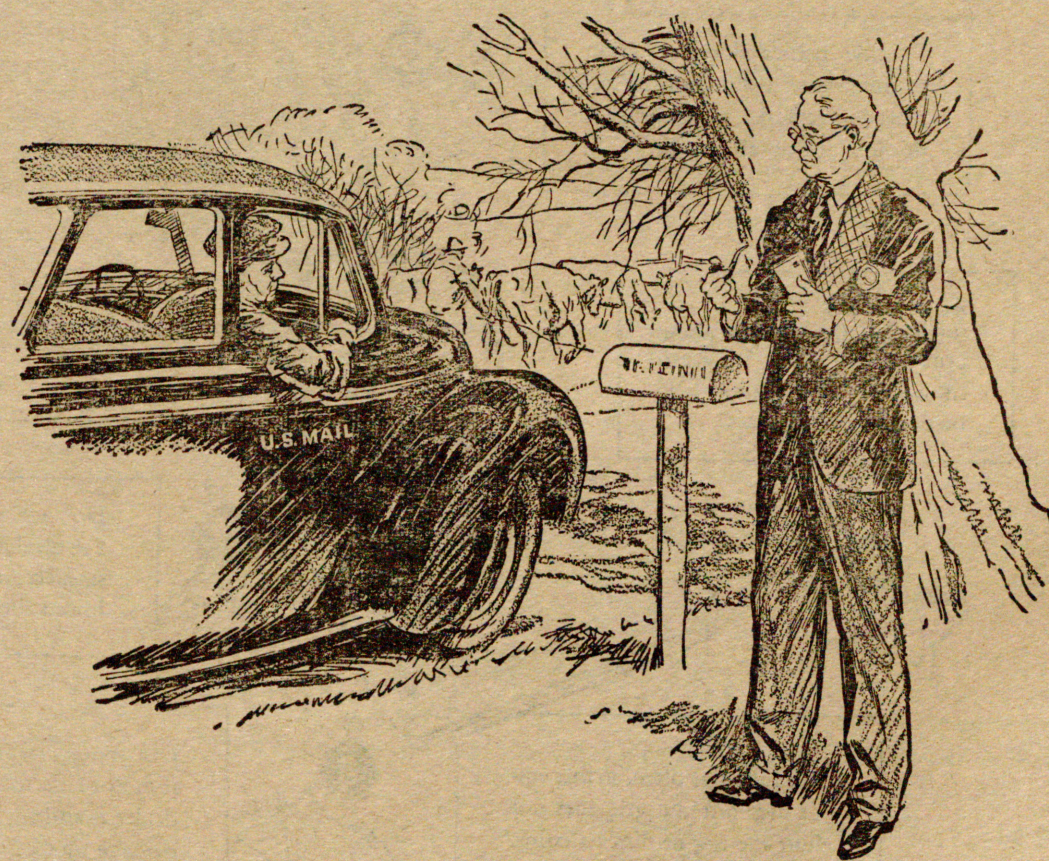

"Sparkling china and gleaming silver may be beautiful homes to many families, even unto the millionth generation—of bad little bacteria," writes Miss Griffin. "The gentle hints of half-way dishwashing just encourage the squatters. They thrive and multiply in lukewarm water, on dishcloths and dish towels.

"They'll go on making themselves at home, spreading colds and other contagious diseases until their unwilling hostess puts an end to them.

"If she's wise, she'll use plenty of hot, sudsy water, the cleanest of clean dishcloths and towels and scalding water. She will change the water before it gets cold and gray."

Students at Washburn University who studied supposedly clean dishes under a microscope found colonies of bacteria—all descendants from early settlers left living on a cup washed by ordinary methods.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Quite a stack of newspapers I left you yesterday, Judge. Aren't you in the newspaper business, are you?"

"No, I just enjoy reading different papers so my nephew George sends them to me whenever he takes a business trip. I got a big kick out of some he sent me from several counties where they still have prohibition. Particularly from some headlines that read 'Drunk Driving Arrests Rise'.

'Bootleggers must post Ceiling Prices', 'Federal Agents seize 'Trick' Liquor Truck'. Doesn't that go to prove, Joe, that prohibition does not prohibit?"

"I watched conditions pretty carefully during our 13 years of prohibition in this country. The only thing I could see we got out of it was bootleg liquor instead of legal liquor...plus the worst crime and corruption this country has ever known."

WATERLESS COOKING
WILL SAVE VITAMINS
IN YOUR VEGETABLES

Waterless cooking is one way of utilizing to the greatest degree the healthful qualities Nature has bestowed upon the products of the garden. It saves the vitamins and minerals.

The following chart is intended as a guide. In most cases you will need only enough water to cover the bottom of the pan about a half inch. Use a tightly covered pan.

"Waterless" Cooking Chart

Vegetable	Fresh Weight	Cups of (Min.) Water	Max. Time
Beef greens	1-1 1/2 lbs.	None	15-20
Kale	1 lb.	None	15-20
Mustard greens	1-1 1/2 lbs.	None	15-20
Spinach	1-1 1/2 lbs.	None	15-20
Tomatoes	1 lb.	None	Start with simmer 15-20
Parsnips	1 lb.	1	20-30
Large cut potatoes	1 lb.	1-1 1/2	25-30
Potatoes—whole with jackets	1 lb.	1-1 1/2	30
Rutabaga, cubed	1 lb.	1	20-35
Winter-squash	1 lb.	1/2-1	20-30
Squash—yellow	1 lb.	1/2-1	20-30
Sweet potatoes	1 lb.	1/2-1	20-30
Turnips—cut	1 lb.	1	20-30
Cut, shredded small green beans	1 lb.	1/2-1	12-30
Lima beans	1 lb.	1/2-1	20-30
Shredded or whole wax beans	1 lb.	1/2-1	15-30
Peas, sliced	1 lb.	1/2-1	20-30
Quartered cabbage	1 lb.	1	15-20
Shredded cabbage	1 lb.	1	10-15
Cut, diced carrots	1 lb.	1/2-1	15-30
Cauliflower	1 lb.	1	20-30
Corn on cob	1 lb.	1 1/2	10-20
Large quartered onions	1 lb.	1	20
Small whole onions	1 lb.	1	20-30
Whole asparagus	1 lb.	1/2-1	15-25
Broccoli	1 lb.	1/2-1	20-30
Brussels sprouts	1 lb.	1/2-1	15-20
Peas	1-1 1/2 lbs.	1/2-1	15-30

Turn gas burner on full until water comes to a boil. Then turn down to a small simmer flame and leave until the necessary time has elapsed.

This type of cooking is not only conducive to better health, but is patriotic as well, inasmuch as considerable savings of fuel can be made. All fuels have gone to war, particularly the liquefied petroleum gases which we know as "bottled" or "tank" gas. These are used to make synthetic rubber, to cut and treat metals and to fortify high octane aviation gasoline.

MEAT POINTS WASTED
BY SHRINKING ROAST
WITH TOO HOT OVEN

Conventional high temperature oven cooking wastes meat. This has always been known but its importance has been recognized generally since the scarcity and rationing of meat.

Following is a chart which indicates the cooking time for various meats when roasting, uncovered, at 325 degrees.

Meat	Minutes to Lb.
Beef (rare)	20-25
Beef (medium)	25-30
Beef (well)	30-35
Poultry	25-35
Veal	30-45
Lamb	30-40
Pork	35-50
Ham (fresh or smoked)	40-50
4 to 7 lbs.	40-50
8 lbs. or over	30-40
Stuffed fish	20

Cooking with low steady temperature will give you plump juicy roasts without charred bones or fat. Even though the cooking period may be slightly longer, less gas fuel is used because the oven is not turned on quite as high. This fuel saving is both economical and patriotic, particularly if you are using "bottled" or "tank" gas which serves those in suburban, small city and farm areas. This gas is now doing war work and you can help by conserving it.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our Mother and Grandmother, Mrs. N. Felton who passed away April 12, 1943.

It was springtime in God's Garden as He gathered a lovely bouquet. But He needed another lovely rose that's why our mother went away.

It was springtime in God's garden as she entered into there, All was beauty and happiness with no room for trouble or care, And now her pain is over, in God's garden where she went to stay. Mrs. L. Yates, Cpl. Lee, Roy, Dorothy and Charles.

RAY SULLIVAN

143rd and Route 4

AN INDIGNANT non-combatant writes in criticizing our off-side guess that for a combination, basketball probably has the greatest number of players and spectators. His selection was softball, where, as he says—"with proper facilities there would be over 30,000,000 softball players."

I doubt this very much, knowing also how many people play softball. Bowling can claim close to 20,000,000. But when you dig underneath the surface there are just four major sports that from the reading and the general interest angle have the greatest appeal. These four are football, baseball, boxing and racing. From the writing and the reading angle, above the playing angle, these are the four tops.

Hockey, a fast moving game, is only known to a small section of the country with no national following. Basketball is almost strictly local in its appeal, even if thousands play it and millions watch it. It is almost an impossible game about which one can write with any national or general interest.

Track and field has only a limited reading or spectator interest. Bowling is more of a home and family game, a magnificent sport that is largely unreadable.

The two basic reading and writing games of the country are baseball and football—or football and baseball. And just back of these we find boxing and racing.

One Answer

In the last few months it has been a privilege to talk before many groups of servicemen who come from every part of the country—including those who have never left the country, those who have seen action—those who have been wounded.

Most of the sports writers have given what they had to give for this service.

The usual manner of procedure comes through questions from the army or navy audience you face.

In keeping an official box score, I would say that over 90 per cent of the queries thrown your way concern football, baseball, boxing and racing.

No one has yet asked me to answer any question about basketball, hockey, track and field or bowling. There have been a few scattered queries about golf and tennis.

This doesn't mean that there are not millions interested in basketball, bowling, track and field together.

There are just as many interested in hunting and fishing. Probably more. But the point is that most of the arguments are built around baseball, football and boxing, with racing getting a smaller share.

What do they want to know about? What team will win the National league pennant—the American league pennant—the World Series?

What about the Dodgers, always sure fire? What about the Yankees?

Could Dempsey have whipped Joe Louis? How good is Beau Jack? Was this 1943 Notre Dame team better than Rockne's best? These are the types of questions they fire at you from those who have come along from the East and West, the North and South.

The 'Argument' Sports

Baseball, football and boxing are the main argument sports, especially the first two.

For example, the two major leagues represent a long parade of smaller hamlets and country towns from which most of the stars come.

Baseball and football belong to all 48 states. They are writing games and reading games and on the reading side they appeal to many more millions than all other sports lumped together.

They have an appeal for the kids, the veterans, the men and the women.

They have such names to give as Ruth, Cobb, Johnson, Mathewson, Dickey, Alexander, Thorpe, Grange, Speaker, Nagurski, Baugh, Hutson, Luckman, DiMaggio, Feller, Ted Williams, Gehrig, Sisler, McAfee, Bertelli—or such teams to follow as the Yankees, Dodgers, Cardinals, Notre Dame, Minnesota, Michigan, Southern California, Tennessee, Alabama, Duke, Texas—and we are barely warming up.

Out in front on the reading side this is a football and a baseball country—with boxing and racing next in line.

Mel Ott's Foot Action

There has always been considerable comment on Mel Ott's ability to hit so many home runs, swinging from one foot. The main answer here is that Mel never swings from one foot.

"When I start my swing," Mel told me lately, "I lift my right foot to be sure that I am set and balanced on the left. But if they watch closely enough, you'll see that my lifted right foot is on the ground again before the bat reaches the ball. This gives me my right leg to hit against."

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

ALTHOUGH professional football has found its place in the sports sun, most interested observers aren't willing to go along with the global thinking evidenced by many of the game's spokesmen—self-appointed and otherwise.

The most important official to air his worldly views is Elmer F. Layden, commissioner of the National Football league. In a recent interview the former fullback of Notre Dame's "Four Horsemen" visions professional football on an international scale.

And, for our money, he makes another mistake in forecasting the expansion of the present NFL and the development of minor leagues similar to those in baseball.

Just why is expansion necessary to the league? The National Football league now includes 11 teams. A majority of franchise holders are opposed to bringing in more cities. The present circuit originated in 1921 and its membership has fluctuated considerably. Twenty-two teams were included in the 1926 league; only eight teams competed last fall. And—important to remember—all of the clubs in the league made money last year, for the first time in history.

Among the Missing

Among the many cities once in professional football ranks were Oorang, Ind.; Pottsville, Pa.; Rock Island, Ill.; Portsmouth, Ohio, and Marion, Ind. They aren't there now. Evidently the game didn't prove profitable in those towns. Only six teams remain of those 22 members of the 1926 league—the Chicago Bears and Cardinals, Green Bay, New York, Detroit and Brooklyn.

Expansion didn't seem to pay in the long haul. The game benefited from contraction—it didn't meet with sufficient approval until the field of competition was reduced.

Owners of play-for-pay teams have been fortunate in at least one respect. They haven't had to lay out any great amount of cash to acquire playing talent. Colleges and universities throughout the country turned out the stars for them. But it has become more and more obvious that the demand has been exceeding the supply. More than one team has gone through seasons with huge gaps in the backfield or line, only because the ready-made talent wasn't available.

The situation isn't much better regarding minor leagues in professional football. Until recent years the salaries paid in the National league weren't high enough to attract college players. And even now the average professional football man gets less than one-third the money paid the average professional baseball player. Granted, the season is shorter.

Question of Salary

It would be difficult for the minor leagues to offer more than $50 or $75 per game, maybe $100 in the bigger clubs. That kind of money isn't very attractive to the athlete who must have more than average ability and who must be willing to work hard for it.

The usual argument is that minor league baseball doesn't pay high salaries. That is quite true, but in this case the young players are willing to play for small wages because there's room at the top—and those top berths pay big money.

It is also our opinion that "international" football is no more than a pipe dream. Football is fundamentally American. Even in Canada they won't play our brand of the grid game. Soccer is the chief European sport and the residents of those countries are quite cool in regard to the American type of football.

Foreign Variety

It is interesting to note that soccer draws colossal crowds in England, but the average pay of the professional player is less than $50 a week.

We hear quite a bit about football in Australia. It is true that American soldiers have succeeded in introducing the forward pass to soccer in a new game called "Austus." But it's a far cry from football.

The word "globaloney" is overworked, but it does describe some of the current thinking in the field of sports.

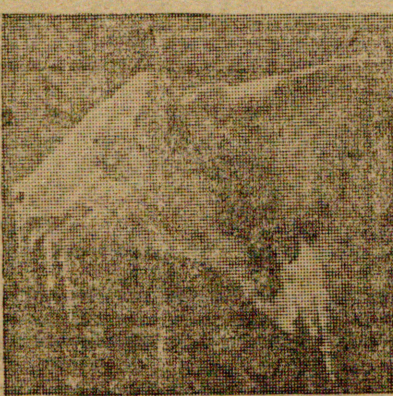

Cattle Ills Result Of Vitamin Lack

Many Ailments Traced To Deficiencies

There is something for farmers to think about in the recent report that veterinarians are encountering more and more cases of "deficiency" diseases in cattle, under today's wartime feeding conditions.

It is generally hard for the cattle producer to recognize such deficiency symptoms himself. Some are obscure, and some become complicated with other conditions involving diseases or parasites. However, the average farmer can profit by taking note of some of the more outstanding symptoms, and thus be able to adopt corrective measures promptly if similar conditions should appear in his herd.

Common Abnormal Conditions. Here are some of the conditions brought on by vitamin deficiencies: Deficiency of vitamin A may cause abortion, weak calves, calf scour, blindness, or swellings in the legs and brisket. The colostrum or first milk is especially rich in vitamin A, and this is one of the reasons why calves should have as much colostrum milk as possible.

Protruding tongue, slobbering, weakness of limbs indicate a vitamin D deficiency. This steer was restored to health by supplying the missing element.

Vitamin B is not needed in mature cattle, but a shortage of this vitamin can cause scours and stomach trouble in calves.

Under certain conditions breeding cattle may have low blood levels of vitamin C, with resultant impotency or sterility.

Vitamin D (the sunlight vitamin) deficiency occurs quite frequently in cattle. Symptoms of D vitamin shortage are swollen joints, lameness, soreness, lack of appetite, and rickets in calves.

Vitamin E seems to be no problem with cattle, as they apparently get plenty of it by normal feeding.

Mineral deficiencies are also becoming more common, as farm soils become more and more mineral-depleted. Some of the mineral deficiency symptoms which occur in cattle are:

Calcium deficiency is indicated by nervousness and fragile bones.

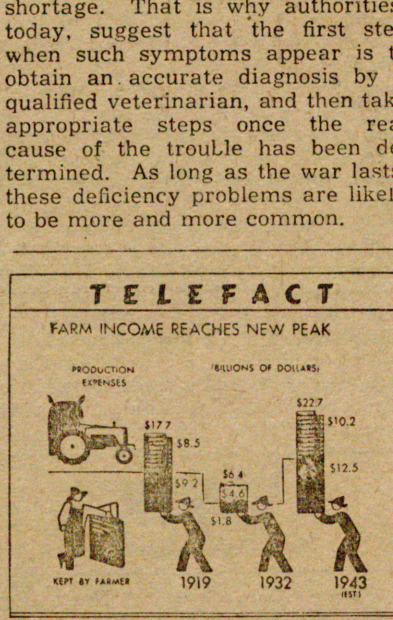

When cattle chew the inside of the barn, fence posts, and other wood objects, this may indicate lack of phosphorus.

Shortage of iron in the diet sometimes causes anemia.

Rough hair, depraved appetite, are common indications of lack of cobalt.

Resemble Diseases.

The greatest trouble about these deficiency symptoms is that many of them are similar to symptoms caused by common germs or parasitic diseases. The result may be that the farmer will try to treat his stock for some ordinary disease, whereas the condition may be due entirely to a vitamin or mineral shortage. That is why authorities, today, suggest that the first step when such symptoms appear is to obtain an accurate diagnosis by a qualified veterinarian, and then take appropriate steps once the real cause of the trouble has been determined. As long as the war lasts, these deficiency problems are likely to be more and more common.

Six-Week Dry Period

"A mature cow should be allowed a dry period of six to eight weeks before freshening, during which time she should be given all of the hay and silage she will eat," Dr. Taylor of Rutgers U. advises. Most good cows need about six to eight pounds of grain daily for the first four to six weeks of the dry period. The grain ration can be made up of a mixture of cereal grains. Heavy grain feeding should be discontinued a week before calving.

Patchwork Apron.

IT'S the nicest apron that ever went into a kitchen! Big enough to cover your dress, well-fitted so that it is as smooth as you'd like an apron to be, bright with color applied in an interesting design at the hemline, it's an apron which lends itself handsomely to any good bright colored percale, muslin or cotton.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1937 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 2 3/4 yards of 35-inch material; 4 1/2 yards bias fold for trimming; 5/8 yard or bright scraps for lower facing.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Planes fly in supplies and bring out crude rubber from Central American plantations. Weeks are saved by this method of transportation.

In building a battleship it takes 150,000 pounds of rubber. This is equivalent to the rubber used in the manufacture of more than 12,000 small passenger-car tires.

The first city omnibus lines, the forerunner of modern motor bus transportation, started operations over the streets of Paris in 1662.

Seventy-three per cent of the employees in 94 war plants depend upon their cars for transportation. Rubber is essential to their work.
